

Are Bleeding Hemorrhoids a Cause for Worry?

Bleeding hemorrhoids are a sign that the condition has become worse. If you are aware that you have piles and they suddenly start to bleed, you might want to check with your physician because this means that you have ruptured your hemorrhoids. However, blood in your stool can also be a sign of other serious health conditions.

One Way to Check If the Blood in Your Stool is from Bleeding Hemorrhoids is from Its Color

If it is bright red, this could mean that it came from your piles. People have hemorrhoids and they act as padding for the anal sphincter, the muscles accountable for moving the stool along. These are filled with blood vessels and they help aid in a stool movement. These kinds of blood vessels receive oxygenated blood, hence the bright red blood, as opposed to the dark red color of the deoxygenated blood. If the blood in your stool is dark red, it may mean that the bleeding will be coming from further up the anal canal or from other parts of your body.

What People Refer to as Piles are Actually Inflamed Hemorrhoids

The inflammation causes discomfort during bowel movement. However, if there is blood in your stool, this suggests that you may have ruptured your piles. Since fresh blood is pumped to this structure straight from the heart, the flow of blood is much more intense. People could become anemic due the loss of blood.

Is Also Important to Note that There are Two Types- Internal and External

This is mainly classified depending on their location. Internal hemorrhoids are situated additional up into the rectum and you won't be able to see these, except if they enlarge to the point that they stick out the anus. Often, inner ones cannot be felt because they are affected by visceral nervousness, which do not transmit pain. External hemorrhoids are usually the ones that people usually see and they are much more painful. Both of these can be ruptured and cause bleeding but it is observed more often with internal cases. If you are not aware that you have piles, blood in your stool is a sign that you may have internal piles.

Generally, Piles can Subside Over Time in the Event that the Cause is No Longer Present

Creams can be used to relieve discomfort and lower inflammation. However, if bleeding is present, damage has been done to the hemorrhoids. You should talk to your physician regarding the severity of the bleeding.

For Mild Cases of Rupture, It can be Treated With Topical Creams and Products

These creams help heal the rupture and reduce the inflammation. For severe cases, surgery may be the best option. Many procedures remove the piles through cutting it off, or cutting off it's blood supply so it dries up. Even some people who are afflicted by mild to average bleeding resort to surgery because it is the fastest way to deal with the condition. However, the procedure is actually painful and costly.

- Bleeding hemorrhoids are a cause for worry but you should not panic.
- Consult with your doctor and possess it handled right away to prevent further complications.
